Cassie Gerhardt - Parent

"I know many of the people that work with Fenworks. I have faith in the individuals who lead Fenworks. I know the type of people they are and how ethical they are. They are running a program that's not just about video games. That's the vehicle through which they're trying to provide an opportunity for students to learn teamwork, collaboration skills, and responsibility."

Ned Clooten - Wahpeton High School Principal

"This is going to transfer over to them flying a drone, and there are lots of careers that are associated with that. I think the idea that you are connecting kids to a skill that they're not going to be able to jump into on their own, then connecting them to this plethora of careers that are up-and-coming in our state. How many times can you say that with one program?!"

Tiffany Schroeer - Empowering Kids Executive Director

"We don't have to understand how esports and video games work to know that this is important to them and that they're practicing leadership and communication."
